Unlike other departments at Stagg which aim to prepare students for college, the business department's goal was to give students the skill and experience necessary for success in the business world they would soon enter.

For those students who were college-bound, arrangements were made so that they would be able to begin college work at the level they attained in high school.

A new course in distributive education entered its second year, under the supervision of Mr. Clifford Qualls. The class resembled a club and proved to be quite successful.

Changes planned for next year within the department include a remodeling of the student service program, to bring student-held office-type jobs under the supervision of the business instructors.

"The American Dame"

American Woman Becomes Individual

Leslie Vroman, Phyllis Kendall

"The American Dame," contained a little of everything—comedy, satire, history, and even a little education. It dealt with the rise of the American woman from under the thumb of the American male to become an individual.

"Bernadine" evolved around Bufford "Wormy" Weldy, a girl-crazy guy with a "mother complex," who could not get a girl. Wormy had quite a reputation among the female sex—namely for throwing girls in streams, dragging them into clumps of trees, and a few other blunders. Hugh McAdams, George Parrish, Kay Pierce, and Dean Atherton spotlighted.

"Lady Winderemere's Fan," an Oscar Wilde play, evolved around the story of an innocent young wife, (Jan Klevan, as Lady Winderemere), who was convinced by friends that her Lord Winderemere, (George Parrish), was one of those husbands who "wanders."

Arsenic-spiced berries, demons, and mysterious death were all a part of the production "We Have Always Lived in the Castle." This drama took place in a dark forbidding house known by its inhabitants as the "Castle." The residents of the house—two young sisters (Sheila Sheppard, and Vicki Caul) and their uncle (Hugh McAdams) were the only survivors of an "accidental" poisoning, which claimed the lives of the parents, a brother, and the wife of the uncle.

Selfish Woman Destroyed Self and Others

The plot of "A Far Country" dealt with Sigmund Freud's research and his discovery of hypnosis as a treatment for persons with psychological problems. Believing that he could break down mental blocks through the use of hypnosis, Dr. Freud (Joe McKee) set out to cure Elizabeth Von Ritter (Cathy Heiser).

A cast of about 40 was incorporated for the Shakespearean play, "The Comedy of Errors." The story evolved around two sets of identical twins; one set are noblemen, the other are servants. Throughout the play each is mistaken for the other, creating a chaos.

"Hedda Gabler, (portrayed by Jan Klevan), a drama by Henrik Ibsen, unfolded a dangerous and selfish woman who destroyed not only herself but practically everyone she came in contact with.

English Promoted Relevancy

Feeling a need for greater relevancy in classes, students and teachers in the English Department led the school with proposed new courses and classroom innovation.

Much of the work for a new English curriculum stemmed from classroom discussion and a questionaire filled out by students. As a result, eight new courses were added including: Humanities, The Negro in Literature, The Novel, Philosophy, Poetry, Science Fiction, Short Story, and Vocabulary.

Unique among the new classes is Humanities which will be taught by a three-man team from the English, History, and Art Departments.

A team teaching effort was tried by Mr. Leonard Fass and Mr. Floyd Ohler to provide greater variety in presentations.

The annual film series featured seven films including "Fail Safe," "Requium for a Heavyweight," and "Death of a Salesman."

Field trips were taken to the Mother Lode by Mrs. Alice Foster in a unit on literature of the west, and to San Francisco by Mrs. Carol Parker in order to see an ACT production of "The Crucible."

In a unique project, Miss Jacquelyn Park's classes "Saved Our Seals," and adopted orphans.

To enrich daily reading, many classes formed paperback book clubs permitting students to order books at discount prices and earn book dividends.

Students in foreign language gained skills in speaking and writing French, German, Latin, and Spanish.

Advanced Spanish students were "tested by fire" this year as they served successfully as translators for a group of Latin American educators visiting the campus during the spring semester.

Generally, each class reflected the atmosphere of the language and culture under study through the aid of films and displays. Audio-lingual materials emphasized correct punctuation and comprehension, in addition to drilling students in the technicalities of grammar.

Math students entered the San Joaquin County Math Field Day where Senior Curt Covey placed third.

The social studies year was primarily devoted to innovation in existing courses, and developing of electives for the next year.

Among the new classes developed were electives in United States History, History of Mexico, Leadership, and Psychology.

In addition, the English, history and art departments combined talents to offer a course in humanities next year which will involve four major themes and rotation of students among a team of three teachers.

Among the innovations tried in existing courses was the production of a historical film dealing with steamship travel on the San Joaquin Delta by Mr. Stan Turner's fifth period United States History class.

Debators Learned Art of Argument

This year's topic "Resolved: That the United States should establish a system of compusory service by all citizens" served as a springboard for research into an area that would eventually influence the debator's dives.

Speakers from Stagg turned in an outstanding performance in both debate and individual speaking. Debators Steve Monk and Randy Thomas qualified for the trip to Los Angeles to compete in the state Speech Tournament there. The individual events, including original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, humorous and dramatic interpretations, oratorical interpretations, oratorical analysis and impromptu speaking were also well represented by Stagg speakers.

Speaking engagements include a varying range from league speech tournaments, to invitational speech tournaments to service club contests.

Debate is an advanced speech class composed of students interested in competitive speaking. After earning sufficient points in speaking events, the student may join the National Forensic League, in which varying degrees of honors are earned.

Salesmen Contracted Local Advertisers

Barbara Flores, leading advertising salesman for the 1969 Archon, checks a fact-sheet before making a sales presentation.

Entering Webb's for a sales presentation has been a pleasant job for Stagg salesmen every year since 1957-58 when the firm advertised in the first Archon.

A contract is drawn up.

Mr. Allan Wong, advisor

Gail Chin, $400 salesman

One of the most essential and little known aspects of Stagg publications is the sale of advertising space in the Archon. The sales class, directed by Mr. Allan Wong, worked laboriously, raising funds to support this year's book.

The sales class worked with the publications staff to accomplish the many steps in selling advertising. Salesmen had the important duty of seeking and contracting advertisers. The yearbook staff then planned, with the client, the exact content of the ad. The necessary photographs were then taken, the ads were designed, and the completed pages were sent to the printer.

Barbara Flores, this year's top salesman, is shown here working with the Archon staff, through the entire process of selling ad space to Webb's. Barbara sold $800 worth of advertising.

Kathy Vassallo, another staffer, discusses the layout and copy to appear in the ad.

Yearbook staff member, Nancy Gotelli, makes an appointment to contact the advertising manager of the store.

Photographer Jeff Greenberg photographs model Joanne Chan (also on the ad staff) inside Webb's.

Steve Takeshita and Laurie Reinking design and produce the advertiser's page.

Experience Coupled With Talent Spelled

With a seasoned, veteran staff, the Stagg Line consistently churned out an outstanding bi-weekly tabloid newspaper. Leading honors for the "Line" included an "All-American" rating in nation-wide competition, and second-place in the Stockton Record Newspaper Guild Contest.

Returning three-year journalism students sparked Stagg Line production. They were Clark Conard, Tom Klein, Janice Lema, Jackie Lee, and Rick Mallett: Under the cool and capable editor-in-chief, Clark Conard, the staff covered all aspects of school events and student activities through news, editorial, feature, and sports stories.

Yearbook Staff Planned A Unique Publication

Drawing layouts, taking photographs, proof-reading—these are but a few of the many tasks which must be performed in the production of a yearbook. This year's Archon staff very willingly took on this responsibility.

Spending nearly as much time in designing and planning as in actual production, the staff hoped to create an original and exciting book. A photo-essay introduction and an emphasis on people were combined to form a really unique interpretation of the year's events.

Janice Lee, a third-year journalism veteran proved to be an energetic editor, and Mr. Charles Bloch, advisor to the staff, provided invaluable advice and encouragement.

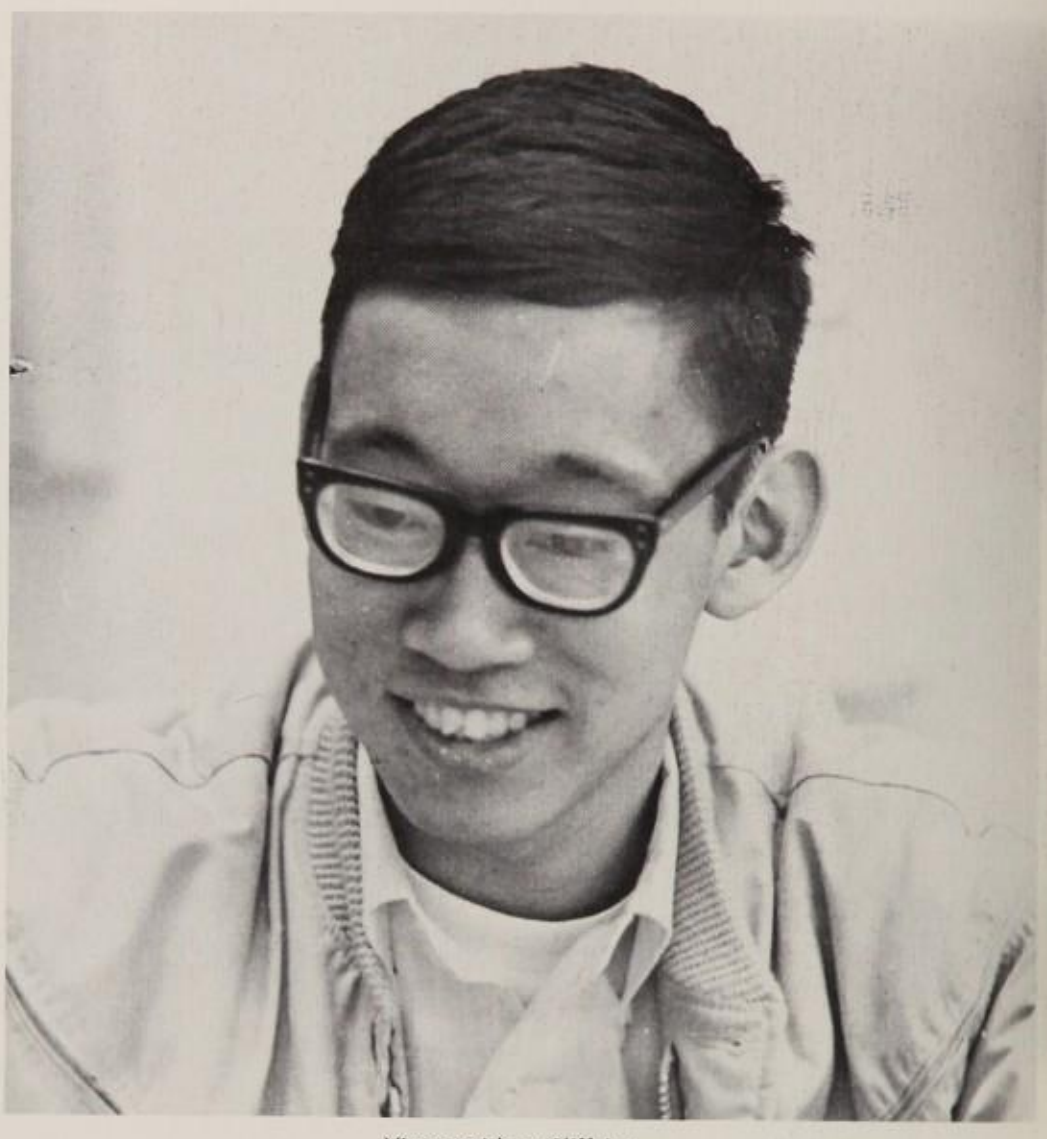
President Susan Lang



Vice-president Cliff Lee

"Privilege through responsibility" was the theme set by Susan Lang, Stagg's first girl Student Union President. Much of the actual work in student government took place at the committee level. Any student had the opportunity to participate in these committees.

The Food Service Committee successfully helped to obtain improvement in cafeteria food and pressed for the installation of vending machines offering a variety of foods. The Constitution Revision Committee's proposition for dividing the office of Commissioner of Student Union Activities into two separate offices—Commissioner of Clubs and Organizations and Commissioner of Student Union Activities—was passed. The Election Committee worked towards better election procedures. In the spring elections computerized Votomatics, provided by San Joaquin County, were used. The integration Committee held meetings with other schools in order to achieve a better understanding of the possibilities of integrated schools.

The House of Representatives was very active this year. It was also a way for students to procure privileges. President Susan Lang stated "the House of Representatives was truly a sounding board for the students." The Supreme Court was in full action this year.

A continuing drive for spirit highlighted the 1968-69 year for songleaders Lisa Caul, Venancia Fidel, Tootie Grasshorn, Chris Hammer, and Cheryl Mathews. A year of practice resulted in a first place at Squaw Valley Songleader and Cheerleader Camp and a trophy at the 49er versus Colt game at Kezar Stadium. Enthusiasm was intensified at games, Rallies, and assemblies by their lively dancing and contagious smiles.

First place and honorable mention in daily competition were awarded to cheerleaders Allan Baker, Chuck Bridewell, Alan Garofalo, Ron Orozco, and Dake Traphagen at the Squaw Valley Cheerleader and Songleader Camp.

Foreign Exchange Student

This year's foreign exchange student, Francoise Vuffray, from Switzerland, took an active part in school activities while managing to stay on the honor roll. Clubs she participated in included: GAA, Round-table, French Club, Rally Club, Spanish Club, and AFS. Francoise was the AFS Club's semi-finalist for Homecoming Queen. Throughout the year, Fran spent weekends visiting different schools and towns.

During Easter, her "family," the Harry Hedburg's took Fran to Disneyland. Francoise also did some skiing on the California slopes and learned how to play tennis.

"My experience at Stagg this year helped me to understand the American's point of view and way of life."

Clubs

American Field Service

Playing host to seven foreign students on a one-day campus visit underscored the American Field Service Club activities. Countries represented included: Brazil, Chile, Germany, Philippine Islands, Sweden, Switzerland, and Uganda. The foreign visitors toured the campus, viewed classes, and attended a luncheon.

The club sent delegates to a California-wide convention in Anaheim and introduced a long-range plan to secure flags to represent each foreign exchange student who has attended Stagg. These flags will hang in the library.

SLANC

Under the leadership of Don Konrad, SLANC (Student Librarian Assistants of Northern California) managed the magazine exchange and helped the librarians to make the library a better place for students to study.

The newly developed magazine exchange made journals available to students who in return donated old magazines that they had no use for. The chief goal this year was to start a scholarship fund for anyone going into librarianship training.

Bowling

President Steve Nagata

Under supervision of Mrs. Gladys Baker, members of the Bowling Club participated in weekly and tournament bowling at West Lane.

In the Spring, club members participated in Fun Fest and an inter-school bowling tournament.

California Scholarship Federation

Christmas dance decorations, privilege day, and a conference at Chico State College were the featured activies of the California Scholarship Federation.

Jane Fastiggi and Emily Marks served as general co-chairman, and Ann Hayashi was decorations chairman for the Christmas Dance which revolved around a theme of "Fire and Ice."

Club officers included: Danny Blair, president; Kenny Nishikawa, vice-president; Jane Fastiggi, secretary; Phyllis Lee, treasurer, and Gail Joice, historian.

French Club activities were designed to give members a better understanding of French culture through exposure to food and drama.

At mid-year, members attended a French play presented at the University of the Pacific. After the play, the group adjourned to the Woolgrower's Inn where they enjoyed French Basque food.

For a Victory Day parade entry the group entered a decorated car representing the Eifle Tower with the slogan "Stifle Lodi."

International Club, representing Panama, joined other high school delegations in resolving political, social, and economical problems at the annual Model United Nations Conference in Berkeley.

The main goal of the Conference was to acquaint students with the functions of the U.N. During the conference, in a surprise move, Stagg calmly declared war on Congo Brazzaville and walked out, but since the room was so crowded, the missing delegation did not come to the attention of the Secretary-General.

Members traveled to Berkeley for Model U.N.

Head Coach Bill Gott

Not confronted with nearly a fraction of as many injuries as when last year's ill-ridden team began season play, Coach Bill Gott hopefully eyed, "a much stronger Delta King football team in all respects."

Even though they competed in a Central California Conference that, "shaped up as one of the strongest ever," Stagg was tagged as a potential contender.

The DK's optimism towards the CCC season swelled after a stunning come-from-behind 19-14 victory over a highly ranked St. Ignatius High of San Francisco.

Elation Shattered By Heartbreaking Defeats

However the DK's elation was shattered by a heartbreaking conference opening 6-0 defeat at the hands of the Franklin Yellowjackets. Attempting to pick themselves off the deck, the Stagg eleven was thwarted in their next attempt for victory as the Modesto Panthers won handily 20-10.

Stagg was not to be held down for long as they came roaring back with two impressive victories over Grace Davis 40-0 and Merced 33-7. It appeared that the Stagg machine was finally running in high gear and hope returned. Sadly enough the DK's bliss was only temporary as they suffered a rude awakening when beaten by Turlock 26-14.

Hoping to wrap up the remaining grid games with at least a winning record to their credit, Coach Bill Gott's gridders found themselves on the short end of two closely-fought away games. Tied at halftime, Stagg fell prey to a late scoring burst by Downey to lose 35-14. At Edison, the DKs threatened an upset over the unbeaten Vikings throughout the first three quarters before fading mid-way in the fourth period to a 25-13 final.

But then even a last-minute transfe of game location couldn't spoil the traditional Victory Day finale against rival Lodi as the Kings splashed their way to a 32-21 mud-packed victory before 7,500 fans in Lodi's Grape Bowl.

Although Stagg's season wasn't exactly record breaking, Martin Molina's was. When the season drew to a close the DK distancers held a conference point total of 136 which put them in sixth place behind league pace setters Franklin, Downey, Merced, Modesto and Edison.

But not all was gloom in the Stagg camp as Martin Molina in the season finale set a new school record of 15:28.

Junior DKs Managed Winning Season Slate

The '69 Junior DKs had a dismal year as a team but turned in some sparkling performances.

Shining efforts were displayed by Sophomore Dan Loesh and center Mike Barton. Even though the over-all record doesn't show it, in clinch situations the little Kings fought hard with a record of 13 wins and 10 losses.

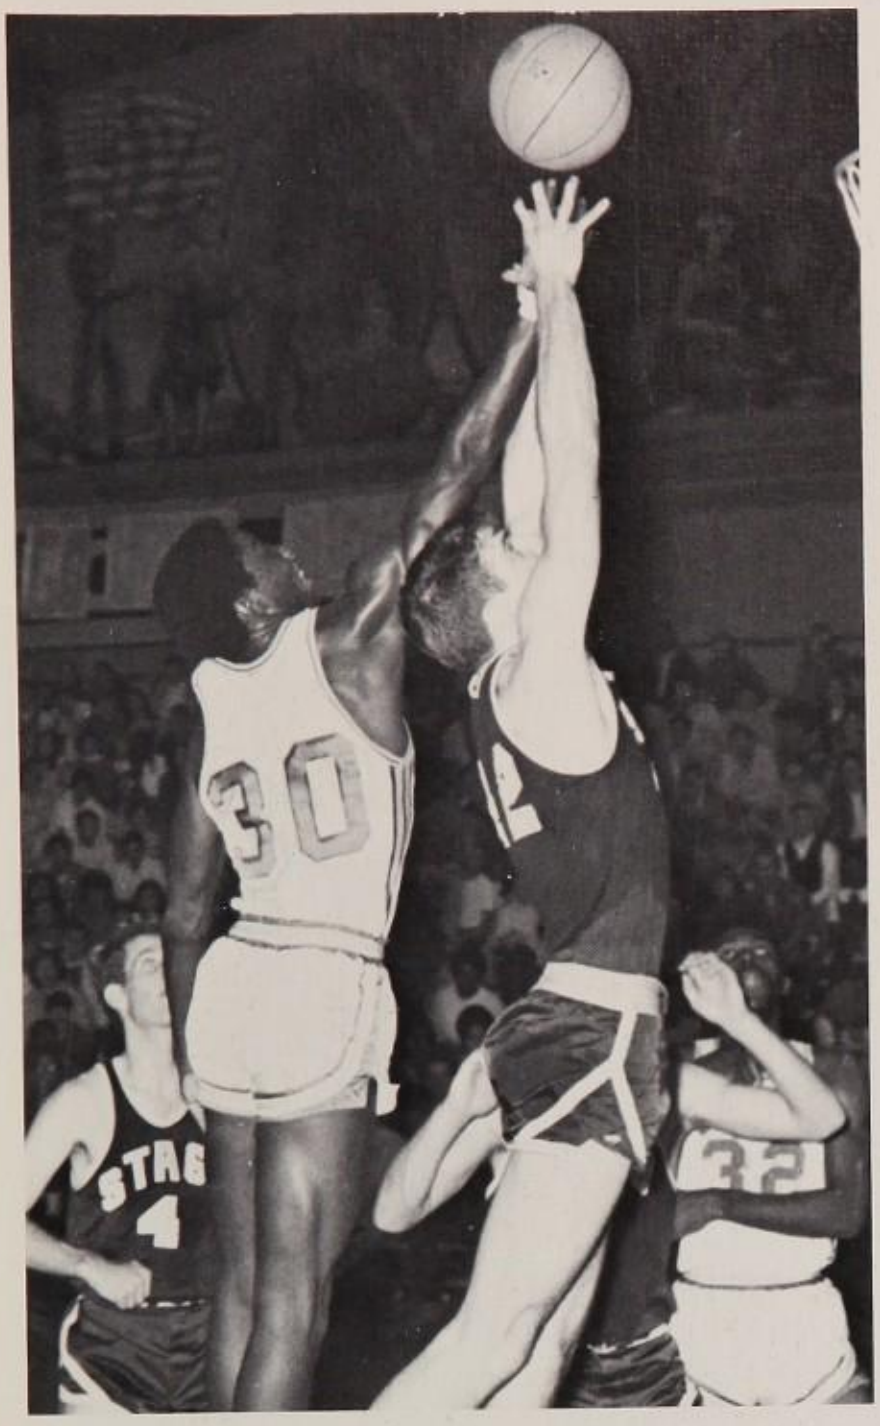
Basketballers Drove With Senior Talent



Junior center Bill Coleman leaps high to pull a rebound away trom Franklin's Richard Ross in the finals of the Stagg Tournament at Lodi's Grape Pavilion.

The 1968-69 Stagg Delta King basketball squad now reigns over the Central California Conference for the first time since 1965.

The Delta Kings, led by seniors Eric Long, Bill Scott, Dave Gainza, Jim Sanders, and junior Bill Coleman, coasted to a perfect 16-0 conference record en route to capturing the crown. With the scoring punch evenly divided between Long, Scott, and Gainza, the DK offense was virtually unstoppable.

In addition, the Stagg zone press plus a tight zone defense proved formidable to all opponents.

Guard Jim Sanders and another pair of DK hands wave wildly to attempt to block a Lodi Flame shot at Civic Auditorium.

After mounting a substantial lead, Stagg's Arabian-oriented starting seniors enjoy a sideline seat during the closing minutes of play.

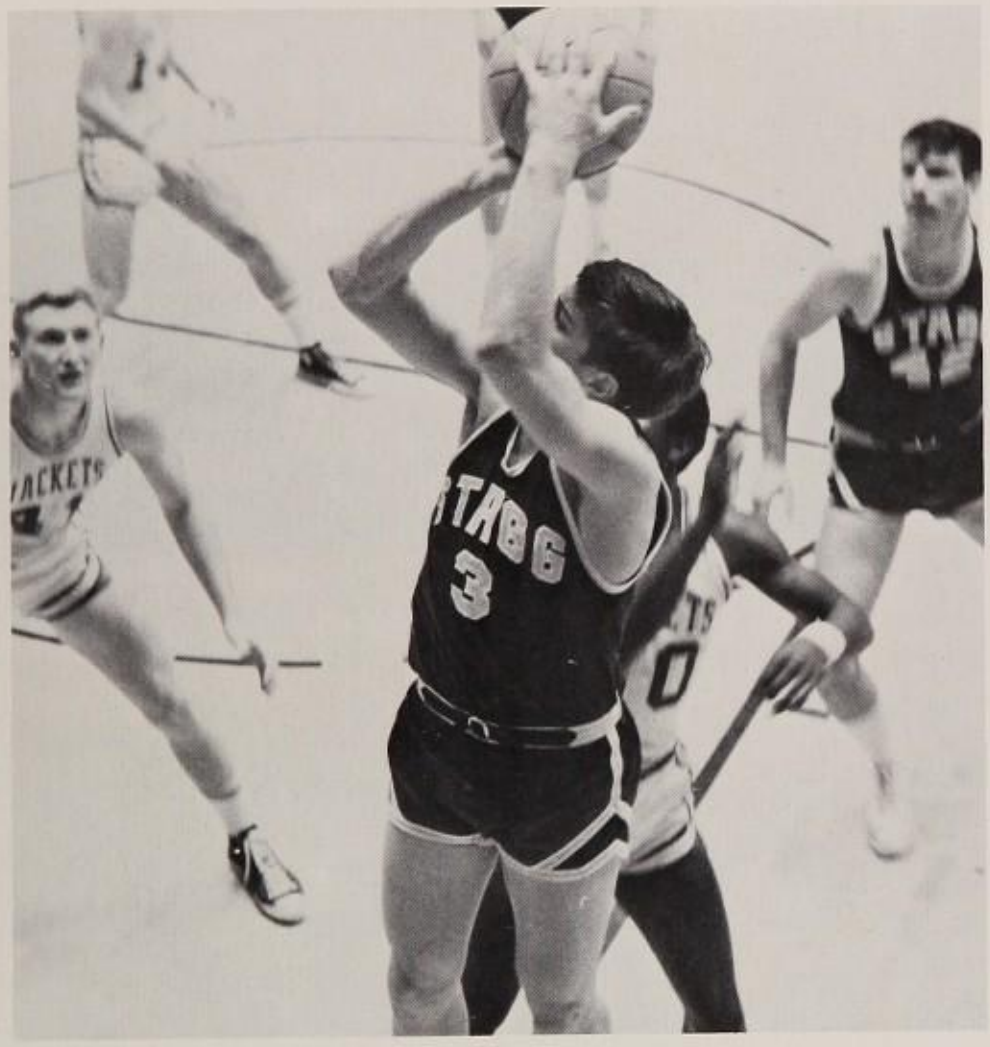
The Delta Kings suffered their only setback of the 1969 campaign at the hands of the Franklin Yellowjackets in the finals of the Stagg Tourney. From then on they moved methodically toward a 22-1 slate.

Stagg had the benefit of having depth on the bench with personnel like Tom Gacer, Kim Smith, Casey Ortez, Tim Mayo, Pat Putman, Bob Cooney, Tim Gacer, and Steve Proulx.

DKs Moved Methodically To A 22-1 Slate



Dave Gainza goes up for two over Franklin in the teams' third encounter. Stagg won 54-43.

The tallest Stagg hoopster, Senior Pat Putnam, picks off another rebound in the Stagg-Lodi contest.

Delta Kings Captured Consolation Honors

The dejected DKs leave the floor after their loss to Jesuit.

The Stagg basketeers, after compiling a 16-0 league mark and with a 20-game winning streak on the line, journeyed to Sacramento to compete in the Camelia City Tournament of Champions.

In their opening encounter the Delta Kings defeated the Pittsburg Pirates, 73-61. However the next night the DKs were edged by the Jesuit Marauders, 49-42. Stagg then came roaring back in thier final game to take consolation honors by drubbing San Ramon, 89-63.

Both Eric Long and David Gainza were selected to the all-tourney team.

Despite inexperience and a team that coud boast only three returning lettermen, the Delta King wrestlers took second place titles in both the City Tournament and the Stagg Invitational Tournament. In addition, the team was represented in each round of the elimination sub-sectional, sectional, and Northern California Invitational competitions.

The big name in mat competition for Stagg was Greg Martin who pressed for an outstanding 12 wins against one loss in dual meet encounters, first in the City Tournament, qualified for both sub-sectional and section tournaments, placed second in section competition, earned a spot in the Northern California Invitational Wrestling Tournament where he placed fifth, was named the DK's most outstanding wrestler, and was placed on the All-City Team.

In addition to Greg, the team was given added depth with returning lettermen Ellery Vallery and Roger Hepperle, and top honors by first-year wrestlers Chris Eley and Dave Stanley who took City Championships in their weight divisions. Dave was also named to the All-City Team.

Four DKs quaified for the sub-section tournament including Terry Fore, Greg Martin, Richard Newton, and Dave Stanley. Newton was also named to the All-City Team.

End of the season honors went to Bill Daseler, most-improved; Mike Johnson, outstanding sophomore J.V., and Steve Takeshita, captain.

Stagg hosted the Northern California Invitational Wrestling Tournament at the Stockton Civic Auditorium under the direction of King mentor Mr. Dave Canclini.

Diamond Nine Showed Depth and Power

The diamond nine, strongly supplemented by junior talent, took the field against a strong C.C.C. this season.

With eight returning lettermen and four juniors holding down starting positions, Coach Bob Chinchiolo predicted a tough over-all defense and good power at the plate. Most of Coach Chinchiolo's hopes rested upon the performance of All-Conference and All-City veterans Eric Long and Chris Forester.

After a slow start in conference competition the D.K.'s picked up some momentum and managed to take consolation honors in the Gus Gallagher Tournament. At the mid-season mark the Kings held an impressive 4-2 slate.

The Stagg racketeers were league contenders for the fourth consecutive year. Under the new coach Dick Ricks the netmen captured all of their first half league matches to lead the race for the C.C.C. title.

Sporting a team with great depth, the netters were led by seniors Paul Bortolazzo, Richard Lee, and Kent Floro, juniors Steve Proulx and Steve Zovickian, and by sophomores Richard Van Camp and Doug Moore.

The netmen were powerful as they rolled over all their league contenders in an attempt to stretch the tennis overall winning streak to 60.

Girls Saw a Year of Action

The Victory Day float showed the Delta Kings making Lodi "whine."

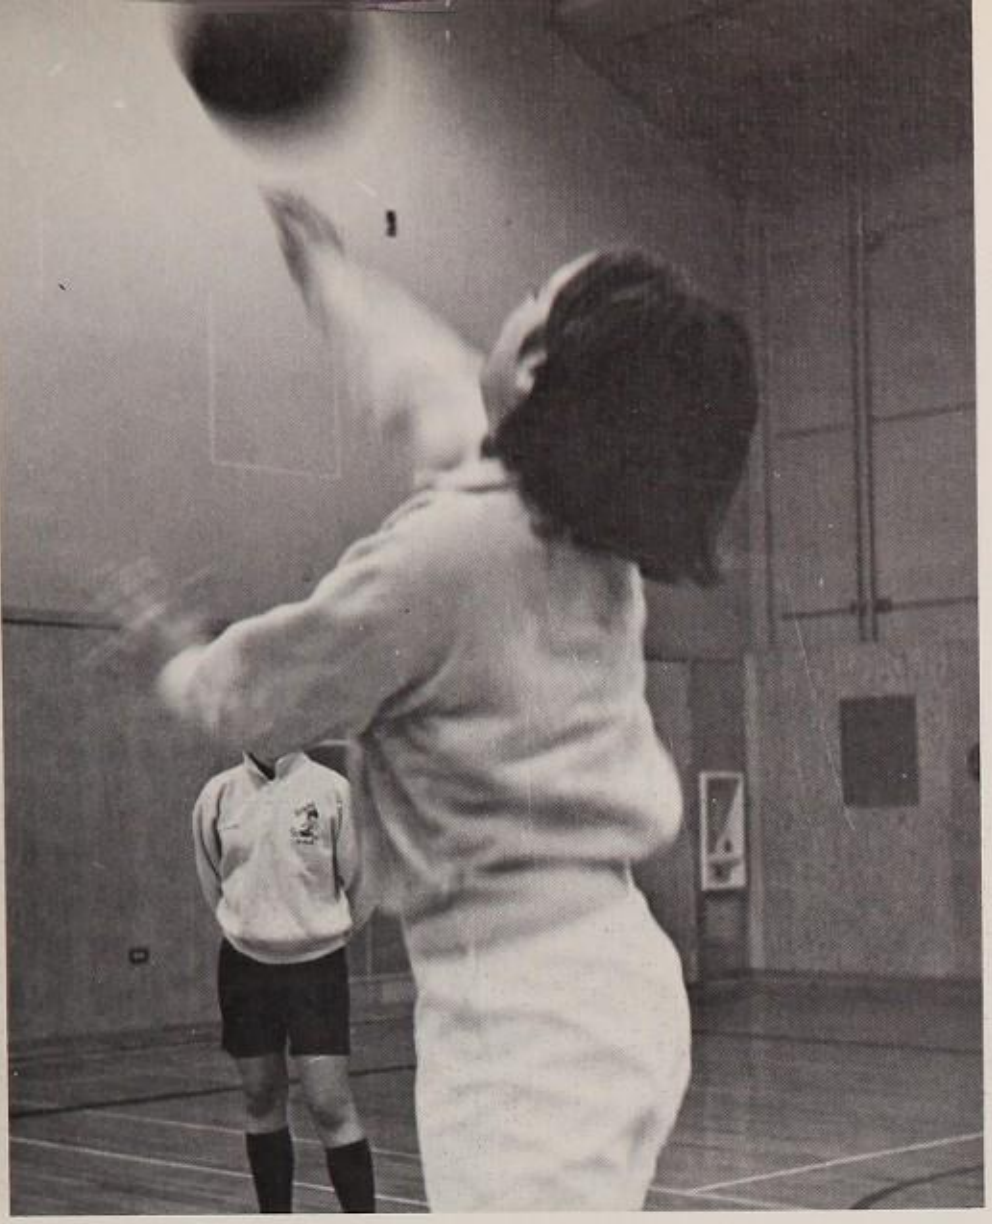
The Girls' Athletic Association was one of the most active clubs on campus. Combining fund raising activities with various sports and community service projects, members were constantly busy.

Being basically an organization to promote athletics for girls, G.A.A. was primarily active in inter-school sportsdays. In October, the girls attended a sportsday at Franklin for hockey and speedaway, at which they tied for second place. In November Stagg's G.A.A. hosted a volleyball sportsday, where their teams captured first, second, and fourth places. They attended a basketball sportsday at East Union High, in Manteca, and a softball sportsday in Linden. Other sports-related activities included a hockey game at Lincoln and a synchronized swimming performance.

G.A.A., as any active club, needed money to finance its busy schedule. In October the annual carwash provided the needed funds, in addition to making for a day of sunny fun for the workers.

In the community the group proved to be an active service organization. Early in the year the girls visited the O. H. Close school where they held a party for the boys who seldom have visitors. At Christmas time, G.A.A. spread cheer by singing carols to invalids.

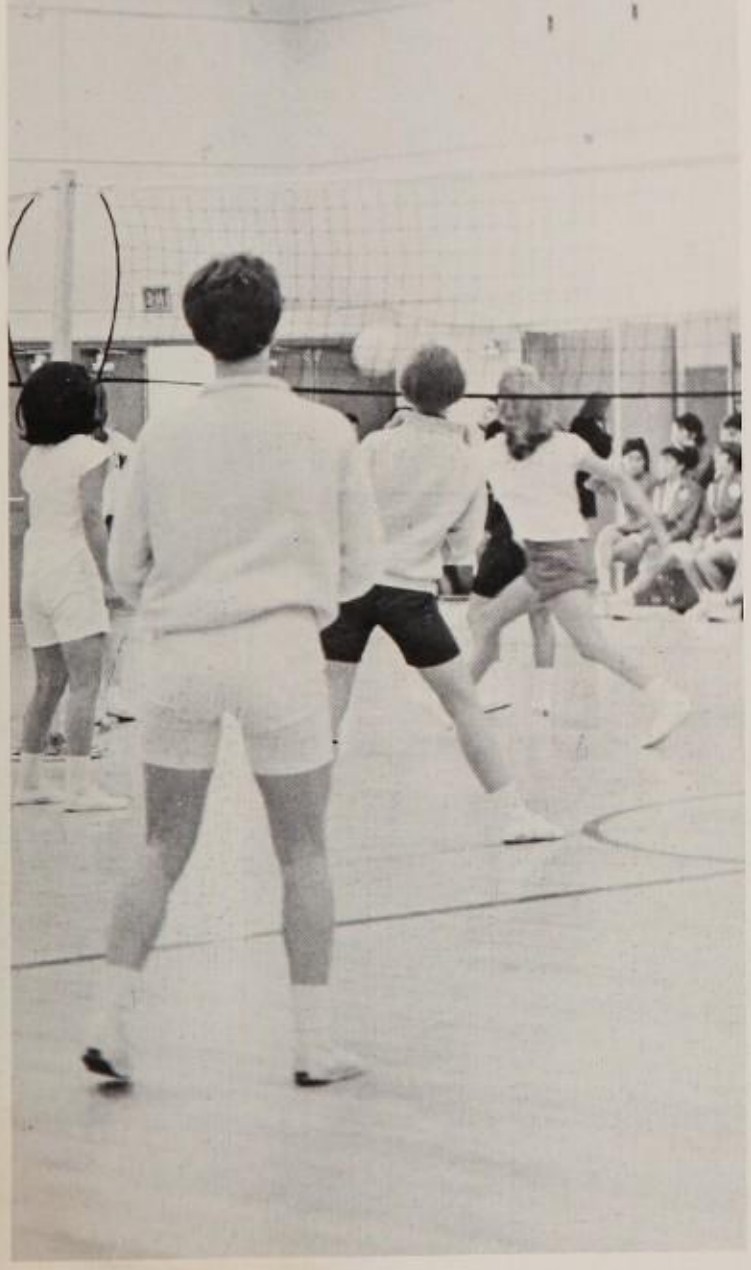
Basketball was a favorite sport.



Kathi Gobbi skillfully shoots a free throw.

On campus, the girls participated in many school activities. They held an initiation for their new members, and entered a float and Queen candidate in Victory Day competition. They held a mid-term awards presentation, a field trip, and a booth at Fun Fest. The busy year brought to a close with the annual All School Sports-Night, and an end-of-the-year awards banquet.

In addition to an energetic membership, devoted officers and advisors made the busy year possible. Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Wilkinson, and Miss Cathey were ever-enthusiastic advisors. Fran McClure served as president; Janice Lee, vice-president; Cheryl Matthews and Marsha Hedburg, secretaries; Susan Green, treasurer; and Alice Komure, points manager.



A volleyball tournament provided excitement.

The annual carwash took muscles and rags.

With a goal to depict the people of our campus as they actually were, this book was designed to be an experience in people.

Through the pages of this record, it is hoped that the essence of the individual—feelings, attitudes and sense of participation—was accurately portrayed.

For their assistance, special thanks go to the Covina plant of Taylor Publishing Company, Smith-Pacific cover company, Crete Studios, and the faculty and students of Stagg High School. Individual thanks go to Mr. Vernon Dettmann and Mr. Joe Hodson of Taylor Publishing Company, and our advisor, Mr. Charles Bloch.
